BOARD TAKES RESIGNATIONS

TWO VACANCIES ARE LEFT IN HIGH SCHOOL FACULTY

JANITORS EMPLOYED

Caretakers to Remain Same at All Schools.—Board Re-Elects Secretary and Treasurer.

Two places in the Maryville High School faculty are vacant today as the result of the acceptance by the board of education Saturday night of the resignations of G. K. Arney, instructor of vocational agriculture, and Perry Eads, teacher of history.

Arney, as previously announced, resigned to accept a position with Miller's Market News at Chicago, while Eads has accepted a position as part time teacher in the science department of the high school at Okmulgee, Okla.

Successors to both will be selected at a later meeting.

The board re-employed the janitors at the three ward schools and the central building. The Franklin school custodian is Levi Smith, Ben Auffart will care for the Jefferson building and John Hull will continue at Garfield. William Abshire and John L. Lockhart are the janitors at the central building.

The report of the board's treasurer for the year ending June 30 was accepted and ordered published. E. E. Williams was re-elected treasurer and George Pat Wright as secretary.

The school in which Instructor Eads will teach next year is organized in accordance with the most advanced ideas in the educational world. It is divided into three departments, for the subnormal, the normal and the supernormal students. The students in the supernormal class receive college credit for their senior year in high school. After next year, all members of the school faculty must have master of arts degrees.

Daughter of Former Graham Couple Dies

Pauline Fleming, 15, to Be Buried Tomorrow at Fillmore. Appendicitis Causes Death at Horton, Kan.

Relatives and friends near Graham have received word that Pauline, the 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Fleming, died yesterday at Horton, Kan., following an operation for appendicitis. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Methodist Church in Fillmore, and burial will be made there.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming formerly lived near Graham, leaving about a year ago to make their home near Horton. Mr. Fleming is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fleming, near Graham.

Cape Girardeau Man in Talks at College

J. A. Whiteford Here All Week for Series of Lectures on School Work —Was Formerly in St. Joseph.

J. A. Whiteford, superintendent of schools at Cape Girardeau, is delivering a series of school lectures at the State Teachers College this week. Mr. Whiteford was formerly city superintendent at St. Joseph and at Oklahoma City.

At 10:15 o'clock this morning, he talked on "School Finances," and at 1:20 o'clock this afternoon on "The Budget and the Taxpayers Viewpoint." Mr. Whiteford will give two talks tomorrow. At 7:30 o'clock in the morning, he will talk on "Choosing Teachers," and at 3:10 o'clock in the afternoon he will speak on "Rating Teachers."

At 9:20 o'clock Wednesday morning, he will speak on "The Organization of a City System," and at 2:15 o'clock he will talk on "The Superintendent's Job."

At 10:15 o'clock Thursday morning, Mr. Whiteford will speak on "What Is Good Teaching," and at 1:20 o'clock he will talk on "Making School Work Pay." His final addresses will be Friday morning, when he will speak on "Education for Life," at 8:25 o'clock, and "The Opportunities of Rural Teachers for Service" at 11:10 o'clock.

With the exception of possibly one, all the lectures will be given in the College auditorium. The public is invited.

Rochester Patients Reported Doing Well

Fred Thompson, Maryville baker, who underwent an operation last Monday at Rochester, Minn., writes that he is "coming fine" but that he will undergo another operation in about two weeks.

Frank Turner, Conception Junction mayor, who also is a patient at Rochester, is reported very much improved and he will leave the hospital in a short time. W. S. Vandeventer is another Conception Junction resident in a Rochester hospital for medical treatment. He and Mr. Turner are at St. Mary's and Mr. Thompson at Kahler Hospital.

Mr. Thompson says he is able to read the home paper and enjoys it very much.

DEBT ACCORD WITH BRITAIN

FRENCH OFFICIALS REACH AN AGREEMENT

REPORT EASY TERMS

Details Will Not Be Published Until Tomorrow.—Government May Extend Credits.

London, July 12.—An agreement for the funding of the French debt to Great Britain was reached here tonight. The agreement was signed by M. Caillaux, French finance minister, and Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequor.

The details of the new agreement will not be made public until tomorrow. The unofficial report is that Great Britain has given France rather easier terms than were at first suggested and that the agreement has been tentatively accepted prior to the arrival of M. Caillaux in London.

France, it is understood, will pay Great Britain approximately thirty million dollars a year during the next five years, after which date the sum will be doubled. The agreement, it is understood, includes a safety clause.

Great Britain, it is also understood, has also agreed to look with favor on British credits for France and has agreed to frown upon English operations in French exchange which would tend to make the franc unstable.

One reliable report in circulation tonight was that the terms of the agreement were so lenient as to amount to a virtual moratorium for the next five years.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Phillips and Frank Reddick of Bethany were guests yesterday of the latter's sister, Mrs. E. E. Rhoads, and Mr. Rhoads.

Injured Boy About the Same.

The condition of Albert Damgar at the St. Francis Hospital is about the same. He is suffering from an injury to the back.

BELLOWS FIRM IS ORGANIZED

W. N. DEATHERAGE CHOSEN SECRETARY AND TREASURER.

TO OPEN OFFICE HERE

Resigns Position At Farmers Trust Co., Effective September 1—Will Be in Charge of Local Organization.

William N. Deatherage, attorney for the Farmers Trust Co., for the last seven years, has resigned his position, effective September 1, and will open a law office, specializing in real estate and income tax law.

He has also taken the position as secretary and treasurer of the firm of C. D. Bellows and Sons, and will have charge of the office, which wil be in the Michau building.

The Bellows organization has just recently been formed, being the sole representatives for Missouri and Kansas for the Book of Rural Life, published by the Bellows-Reeves Co., of Chicago. Mr. Bellows and Mr. Deatherage were in Chicago last week completing arrangements for the new organization.

The Book of Rural Life is being placed in the rural schools of Missouri and Kansas and present indications are that it will have a large sale. The Bellows book has received many favorable comments from a number of the leading educators throughout the country and is said to be the most complete book of its kind ever published.

The field work will be in charge of Fred Bellows, Charles F. Bellows and Fayette Bellows. At the present time there are ten salesmen in the organization and more will be added from time to time. All the business will be handled from the office in Maryville.

Mr. Deatherage came to Maryville from Kansas City seven years ago. He had previously been connected with a large law firm in that city.

He is a graduate of the University of Missouri and was a member of the famous "Bill" Roper football team in 1909 which made such an enviable reputation in the Middle West.

Visits Brother in Jail; Drunk; Fined

John Irby of St. Joseph was arrested on North Main street Saturday afternoon and charged with drunkenness. With Mayor W. O. Garrett sitting as police judge because of the illness of Justice W. L. Johnson, Irby was fined $5 and costs, a total of $11.65.

Irby came to Maryville, he said to visit his brother, Lewis Irby, who is in jail awaiting trial on a charge of cashing a bogus check.

Mrs. H. A. Hiter, Miss Nina Bowman, Miss Barbara Bowman and Miss Hazel Anderson motored to Quitman yesterday to visit friends.

250,000 Elks Are in Chicago for the Annual Convention of the Fraternity

Chicago, July 12.—More than 250,000 Elks from all sections of the United States and from Alaska, Hawaii, Philippine Islands, and the Canal Zone are in Chicago today for the opening of the annual B. P. O. E. convention which will last through July 18.

The conclave rivals in splendor and attendance all previous conventions, Grand Lodge officials said. A balloon race, mammoth parade with 100 bands, Charleston contest for delegates, and the Beauty Derby in which a dazzling array of pulchritude has been collected, are novel entertainments on the program.

The balloon race, which will be under the direction of the National Aeronautics Association, offers a $1,000 purse for the pilot covering the greatest distance. If weather conditions are satisfactory the race will start tomorrow afternoon. Second and third prizes are $700 and $300.

The field of 300 of Chicago's prettiest girls competing in the Beauty Derby, which will be held Wednesday afternoon, has been narrowed down to fifteen by the judges. At the Derby four of the fairest will be elected to typify "Miss Justice", Miss Brotherly Love," Miss Charity", and "Miss Fidelity", the four cardinal virtues of the order.

"Miss Fidelity", the fairest of the fair, will be awarded a motion picture contract at the coronation which will be held at the formal opening of the Oregon Dance Palace.

"Miss Justice" will be given a film tryout and "Miss Charity" will receive a tour of Yellowstone park. "Miss Brotherly Love" will be given a trip to the Sesqui-Centennial exposition at Philadelphia.

The largest delegation 800 Elks from Philadelphia, arrived yesterday. The delegation includes three bands, three floats, drill corps of 100 men, legion of honor delegation of fifty and a motorcycle guard.

The Minneapolis lodge, No. 44, led by its newly organized band, arrived yesterday. The band will entertain bed-ridden patients in Chicago hospitals during the convention.

Twenty members of the Balboa Lodge made the long journey from the Canal zone and arrived in Chicago Saturday.

The convention will open this afternoon with a public meeting at the Auditorium when Acting Mayor O'Brien and Governor Len Small address the delegates. A golf tournament and dinner for Grand Lodge officers will follow.

Tomorrow the Elks will go to Lockport, Ill., on the yacht Eridera and will cruise on the lake before the start of the balloon race.

Drilling Once More Resumed at Oil Well

Underreaming to Bottom of Present Hole Is Expected to Be Completed by Wednesday.

Work was resumed this morning at the test oil well of the Quitman Oil and Gas Co. G. H. Rose, drilling contractor, expressed the hope that it would be continuous until oil is found or the hole proved to be dry.

An under-reamer is being used to permit lowering of the eight-inch casing to the full depth of the present hole, 1,191 feet. Drilling below that depth is expected to begin Wednesday.

The six-inch casing has arrived.

Vet Parade Arouses Official Resentment

Frenchmen Protest Against Franco-American Debt Pact.—Solidify Opposition Here.

Washington, July 12.—The parade of the French veterans in Paris yesterday in protest against the Franco-American debt settlement aroused keen resentment in official quarters here.

While public comment was more or less guarded by officials of the executive branch of the government, it was not so restrained among members of Congress.

The effect of the agitation, it seems certain, will solidify rather than decrease the opposition in Congress to the leniency already shown France on the 50-cents-on-the-dollar Mellon-Berenger agreement.

Sightless Youth to Try to Forget Slaying

Roy Atkinson of Pittsburg, Kans., Recently Acquitted of Murder, Takes Job In School For Blind.

Kansas City, Kans., July 12—A one-armed youth, who lost his sight in an explosion many years ago, recently forced to kill his step-father in defense of himself, will attempt to forget the tragedy by teaching.

He is Roy Atkinson, 21, Pittsburg, Kans., has been named to become an instructor in the school for the blind here where he will teach an improved Braille system.

Atkinson was recently exonerated by a coroner's jury, after he had rained blows on his stepfather's head with a window weight, causing his death.

Mrs. Truman D. Hosmer Dies Sat. Night

Mrs. J. F. Colby of Maryville Attends Funeral For Aunt—Joseph Jackson Receives Word.

Joseph Jackson received a message this morning announcing the death of his aunt, Mrs. Truman D. Hosmer, at Colorado Springs, Colo., on Saturday night. Funeral services were held at Colorado Springs today.

Mrs. Hosmer had not been ill and her death is supposed to have been due to a heart attack. Mr. Hosmer underwent an operation at a Colorado Springs hospital last Wednesday and his condition is serious.

Mrs. J. F. Colby of Maryville and Mrs. Miles G. Saunders of Pueblo, nieces of Mrs. Hosmer, attended the funeral today at Colorado Springs. Besides her husband, who formerly was engaged in business in Maryville, Mrs. Hosmer is survived by one son, Daniel Hosmer of Wichita, Kan.

Wilfred H. White Is Here for Vacation

Wilfred H. White, electrical engineer of automatic telephones of the New York Telephone Co., arrived in Maryville yesterday for a visit at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. White. He will be here for about three weeks. Mr. White has been in New York for about four years.

Rev. Taggart Is Named as Spiritual Chairman

At a recent meeting of the state executive board of the Parent-Teacher Association the Rev. E. P. Taggart, former pastor of the Burlington Junction Christian Church, was unanimously appointed state chairman of the Spiritual Training department. The state board endorsed the Character Training Program, of which he is editor, for use throughout the state. Any organization or individual interested in this course is asked to communicate with Mrs. E. L. Wilson, 310 West Seventh street, secretary of the local P. T. A.

Mrs. Lena Umphrey of Chicago is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Greg, in Clearmont.

LATE SECY., OF WAR DIES

END COMES TO JOHN W. WEEKS EARLY TODAY.

DEATH WAS FORECAST

Physicials Issued Bulletin Yesterday That Politician, Ill for Long Time, Would Die Soon.

Lancaster, N. H., July 12.—John W. Weeks, former Secretary of War under Presidents Harding and Coolidge, died at his summer home at Mt. Prospect here early today.

He was 66 years old.

The end came with his family at the bedside, fully prepared for death, in view of a bulletin issued by attending physicians late yesterday stating that the former cabinet member could not survive another twenty-four hours.

The former war secretary never fully recovered from the ailment that compelled him to resign from the cabinet and two weeks ago he took to his bed for the last time with what was announced as a tumor on an artery on the brain. His condition became critical last Wednesday and several days ago he lapsed into coma.

Gathered about the bedside when the end came were Mrs. Weeks and son, Sinclair, and Mrs. Sinclair Weeks and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Dandge of Washington, son and daughter-in-law.

John Wingate Weeks, although a banker and broker by profession, devoted most of his life to politics. As friend and lieutenant to Murray Crane he early obtained a position of power in the Republican party in New England. Beginning in 1898, as an alderman in his home town of Newton, Mass., he was successively mayor, representative, Senator and Secretary of War.

In the Republican convention of 1916 he was second to Charles Hughes as choice for Republican presidential nominee.

Mr. Weeks was born at Lancaster, N. H. April 11, 1860. When 17, he was teaching in the district school at Lancaster and later went to the naval academy of Annapolis from which he was graduated in 1891 and for two years served in the navy. For the next six years he was land commissioner for the Florida Southern Railroad.

In 1888, he married Miss Martha Sinclair. Two children were born to them —Sinclair Weeks and Katherine, now Mrs. J. W. Davidge.

In 1889, he returned to Boston and with Henry Hornblower organized the banking and brokerage firm of Hornblower and Weeks. Mr. Weeks remained the active manager until 1913 when he was elected to the United States Senate.

Springfield S. T. C. President Resigns

Dr. Clyde M. Hill to Accept Professorship at Yale.—Successor to Be Chosen Soon.

Springfield, Mo., July 12—Dr. Clyde M. Hill resigned Saturday night as president of the Southwest Missouri State Teachers Colelge, to accept a professorship at Yale university.

A meeting of the board of regents to select a successor will be held within the next few days, according to Ignace Glaser, chairman of the board of regents.

Well Pleased With Caillaux's Project

But No Details Of French Finance Proposal Are Available Following Cabinet Meeting.

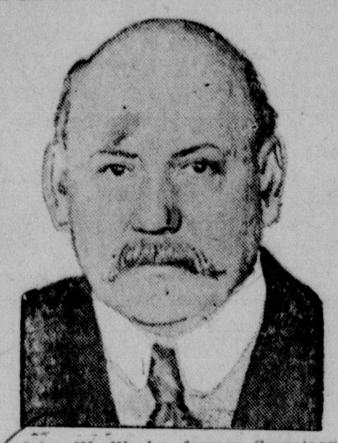
Paris, July 10.—The cabinet met this morning and heard lengthy discussions, but the communique issued at the conclusion of the session made no mention of the details of finance minister Caillaux's financial project.

Premier Briand, in the name of the entire cabinet, lauded Caillaux for his clear and forceful explanation of the financial situation in the Chamber and congratulated him upon his success in securing a vote of confidence.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Neal of Sac City, Ia., came Saturday to visit the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Neal.

The condition of Mrs. Henry Stapler, who is ill at her home on West Third street, was critical today.

FORMER CABINET MEMBER DIES



John W. Weeks, former Secretary of War in the Harding and Coolidge cabinets, who died at his summer home in New Hampshire today.

INDEPENDENT TO MEET VARE

PENNSYLVANIA SENATORIAL ELECTION HAS NEW ANGLE.

MAY BE GOV. PINCHOT

Fight Against "Boss" of Philadelphia Not Ended.—Likely Three-Cornered Race.

Washington, July 12.—The Senatorial election in Pennsylvania, ordinarly a formality incident to Republican victory, is to become this year a three-cornered affair so complicated that political leaders here hesitate to hazard a guess as to the outcome.

Representative William S. Vare, the "boss" of Philadelphia, who spent $800,000 in winning the Republican race, probably will be opposed by an independent Republican because of the scandal unearthed by the Reed investigating committee, it became known today.

Governor Gifford Pinchot, or the dry candidate in the primary, who spent something less than $200,000 in his unsuccessful attempt to win the nomination, has written a letter to a friend in Washington, asserting the determination of the anti-Vare forces to contest with Vare and William B. Wilson, the Democratic candidate, in November. This letter, after reviewing the unusual conditions developed by the Senatorial investigation of the primary contained this:

"The fight against Vare is not yet ended. Whether I will lead it or someone else has not yet been definitely determind."

Investigates Salaries to Railroad Officials

Washington, June 12.—Huge salary increases for officials of the St. Louis and O'Fallen Railway Co. were investigated today by the Interstate Commerce Commission in its probe of excessive operating expenses of that line.

William Cotter, president of the railroad, questioned by examiner Kelly, revealed he had received a bonus of $25,000 in 1923.

Lively Verbal Clash Promised in Inquiry

Frank B. Smith Calls Senator Caraway a Willful Purveyor of Misstatements After Reading Speech.

Chicago, July 12. — Lively verbal clashes today were promised when the special senate committee opens hearing in Chicago July 26 to investigate charges that the Republican primary campaign in Illinois cost upwards of $3,000,000.

Col. Frank B. Smith, who defeated Sen. William B. McKinley for the Republican senatorial nomination at Illinois' April primary, and whose campaign is alleged to have cost approximately $2,000,000, yesterday for the first time read the text of the speech delivered in the senate by Senator Caraway, Arkansas, in which charges of excessive campaign expenses were made and promptly issued a statement that Senator Caraway was a "willful purveyor of misstatements."

"When the senate investigating committee begins its work in Chicago it will be shown clearly that Senator Caraway should not take advantage of his senatorial immunity to spread such misinformation," Smith said.

"The Caraway speech is so wild and unwarranted that when we get around to the facts it will be looked upon as a joke."

NINETEEN DIE IN EXPLOSION

FRESH BLASTS FEARED MOMENTARILY IN NEW JERSEY

DAMAGE 100 MILLION

At Least 400 Injured in Naval Ammunition Depot Inferno.—Many Still Missing.

Lake Denmark, N. J., July 12.—More explosions are feared today in the disaster at the naval ammunition depot here and the partial destruction of the army arsenal at Picatinny.

Precautions have been taken to prevent a catastrophe at the army depot. Fires are still raging and may cause new detonations with further loss of human life. Nineteen are known dead and possibly thirty others are believed to have been killed in the explosion at the navy arsenal.

The property damage is estimated at more than 100 million dollars. At least four hundred have been injured, according to the latest checkup.

The first blast occurred late Saturday and the blast rocked the surrounding countryside, turning the districts into a No Man's land.

After the wind changes its course, it is feared the huge arsenal at Picatinny will be set ablaze by sparks drifting across the gully that separates the army and navy stations.

Dover, N. J., July 12.—Sixteen bodies had been recovered from the devastated region between the army base at Picatinny and the naval reservation at Lake Denmark, N. J., today. The total number of known dead is nineteen.

One body was recovered yesterday and a woman victim of the explosion died at the hospital.

Twenty or more persons are still missing. Damage is estimated at 100 million dollars but some officials believe the loss might run higher in view of the widespread property damage. The list of the injured probably will reach into the hundreds, a preliminary estimate indicated.

Dover, N. J., July 12.—The bodies of five marines, who lost their lives in the explosion at the navy ammunition depot late Saturday, were removed from the devastated area today.

At 11 o'clock, the first squadron of marines entered the reservation at the Lake Denmark arsenal to search for the bodies of the victims. Explosions still were occuring at intervals but it was felt that efforts should be made to seek for many casualties who might still have a chance for life if treated in time.

The marine searchers were supplemented by detatchments from the medical corps of the navy yards and by ambulances carrying stretchers, caskets and supplies. Major Norman Ramsey, commandent at the Picatinny arsenal ventured some distance into the area of fire today on a reconnoitering expedition and upon returning announced that total damage to both army and navy depots would amount to a hundred million dollars, which he regarded as a conservative estimate.

Dover, N. J., July 12.—Ten known to be dead, between twenty and thirty others believed to have been killed, more than two hundred injured, and property damage estimated at 100 million dollars—this today, as far as checked, was the terrific toll of the explosion which late Saturday wrecked the navy ammunition depot at Lake Denmark, N. J., six miles north of here, driving people in wild flight from ten nearby villages and for hours wrought destruction.

On all sides shells continued to burst from the smouldering ruins.

Fearing further explosions, navy officials and other investigators have kept the curious back on the rim of a rough circle drawn about a two-mile radius of Lake Denmark. To enter that deadline would have been suicide and for that reason it has been impossible to obtain an accurate check on the dead or missing.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Flowers of Albany were guests yesterday of Eugene Yehle.

Weather

Probably local thundershowers in north portion tonight; somewhat warmer in south portion; Tuesday partly cloudy.

PROTECTION FOR EMPTY HOUSES

The police departments of some cities are urging prospective vacationers to notify the chief of police in writing, giving their house address and the length of time they expect to be out of town. The idea is to protect the house from robbers and other perils.

With such notification, the various policemen on duty regularly try doors and observe the condition of the place. At the slightest sign of entry or disturbance they will investigate. One or two shades should be left up so that the patrolman can look into the house. Thieves like lowered shades.

Some people tempt burglars, the police say, by leaving a note on the door saying they will be gone for a month or a week or whatever the period is.

Perhaps few citizens realize that they could have such service from the police department. It ought to be made more widly known. A word to the wise householder should be sufficient and, police protection or not, it is well to put valuable silver and jewelery into a safety deposit vault, right along with shutting off the water. These few simple precautions insure a happier homecoming.

THE LIGHT-HEARTED BILLIONAIRE

John D. Rockefeller at 87 years may not be described exactly by the old formula of "hale and hearty", but he does seem to be just about the same as he was 20 years ago.

He gets out and plays golf every day. Just how good or how strenuous a game he plays may be a matter of dispute, but at least he goes through the motions of playing, which is more than 99 per cent of the men at his age would do.

The important physical facts is that he lives an outdoor life.

Also he keeps up his spirits. His state of mind, perhaps, is more important than his golf and his quiet enjoyment is being outdoors. His physician says he expects to live to the age of 100, and temporarily he seems suited to such an achievement. His mind has more to do with it than his body.

The most remarkable thing about Rockefeller is that he bears so lightly the burden of billianairedom. The tradition that wealth brings ease is false. Most very wealthy men are crushed by their wealth. Rockefeller, giving away much, yet retaining far more than Carnegie did, gives the impression of a man who hasn't a care in the world. Thus he sets a good example to a lot of people, big and little, who worry more about their money after getting it than they did about making it in the first place.

"Whiskers are the ambition of youth, the horror of woman and the plague of man," says the Columbia Missourian.

If the Democrats are going to hold to their two-thirds rule for nominations, they' better call their next presidential convention pretty soon, before candidates become active.

Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, is another prominent Southern Democrat who has come out in favor of abolition of the old two-thirds rule in Democratic national conventions. The movement for abolition is gaining strength, but whether sufficient to overcome the historic rules is another question. The trouble is that it can only come up for action in convention when or immediately after there is a fight on between candidates and the friends of one are always sufficient to postpone action if they believe a change would operate to the advantage of another.

What Other Editors Say

IS PROHIBITION A FAILURE?

The enemies of prohibition are constantly asserting that prohibition is a failure; that as much liquor is drunk now as in the older days, the difference being that it is of an inferior quality; and that the law can never be enforced.

The evidence is all to the contrary of the above assertions, as every one who is willing to be fair knows. While there is some bootlegging in this city one seldom sees a drunken man. This is true of every city and town in all this western country, no matter what it may be in the east. Recently the writer drove many hundred miles, the trip including towns and cities, and in all that trip did not see a drunken man. This is not because he does not know a drunken man when he sees one, for in the old days he was accounted somewhat of an expert along those lines.

The trip included a stay at Excelsior Springs, Missouri. In the wet days the Springs was the most open town in the country. Gambling and saloons were in evidence on every hand. Men of the sporting fraternity made it their mecca, sometimes to get "boiled out" but more often to partake of the always "open house" the Springs maintained. Excelsior Springs is located in the section where Jesse and Frank James were born. The Frank James farm is one of the big attractions to those who visit the Springs. Liberty, sixteen miles away, was the scene of the first bank holdup perpetrated by the James gang. The country was wild and wooly and the people equally so. Everybody, almost, drank liquor, most of it the "red" kind; they gambled and raced horses and fought chickens.

Today Excelsior Springs is one of the most peaceable towns in the country. There are no gambling houses, no saloons, no vice that is flaunted as in the old days. Its people are law-abiding and sober. The change, we were told by reputable people, came with the banishment of the open saloons under prohibition. It is a fair sample of the change that has occurred in every section of the country. Drunkenness is taboo; business men cannot get drunk and continue to do business; the people will not stand for it. Then, too, there is more evidences of prosperity; more well kept homes; better dressed people; better fed people; better minded people.

Prohibition is not enforced as we would have it in all sections of the country; but if the improvements any fair minded man or woman can find on every hand, are attributable to partial enforcement then complete enforcement will advance this nation to a point as near the millenium as any nation will ever attain.—Atlantic Telegraph.

NEWSPAPER VALUES

Placing The Kansas City Star on the market has brought prominently to the attention of the public the financial values of prosperous newspaper property. This angle of the business has not been particularly advertised. Like the bankers and other business men newspaper owners have not been particularly anxious to advertise to the public their financial affairs.

It has been the impression, gathered from long years when newspapers were not prosperous, that a newspaper was a sort of political hanger on, printed for the purpose of electing somebody or advancing the interests of some political party or of some special cause. Men with money often cheerfully sustained enormous losses in order to own a newspaper and be able to give to the public a special viewpoint favorable to the affairs of the owners.

This theory has about been abandoned even in the country districts. The successful newspapers from a financial standpoint are not the ones which get the public patronage on account of support rendered in a campaign, but those which are operated honestly for the benefit of the community. The formula once given out by Wm. R. Nelson who built The Star is about the best possible formula for newspaper success, "Whatever Benefits Kansas City, Benefits The Star."

The financial value of The Star has come because Kansas City has grown from a city of forty thousand people to a city of four hundred thousand people during the life of the paper. The value is what the single taxers refer to as "unearned increment."

Advertising has come to be understood as a necessary force in all successful business. If a man has something to sell he can tell possible customers about it with less expense by advertising in a newspaper than in any other way. In order to be worth the most the readers must have faith in the honesty of the newspaper. So it happens that well conducted newspapers refuse advertisements running into big money all the time because they consider those advertisements dishonest.

Those making offers for The Kansas City Star are basing those offers purely and simply on the financial statements showing the money earned by the business. If The Star earns a net profit of a million dollars a year any financier can figure how much he is justified in paying for a business with that earning capacity.

There is, however, another element which enters into the newspaper business not to be found in other business enterprises. Earning power may disappear with a breath. Just let it be understood that the paper is dishonest with its readers and it ceases to be a valuable medium. There are hundreds of big newspapers which are not earning returns and when they do not pay a profit the loss is enormous. It is a hard matter to stay a failing paper and make it an earning paper.

The public is interested in the sale of The Star. The proceeds go to the public. This is not the most important item. The paper has a wide and vital influence on the prosperity of several states and upon the lives and happiness of the people who live within its circulation. It may make or unmake business enterprises, rule politics, destroy or build up. We hope the paper will fall into the hands of able, honest men who understand the responsibility and who are willing to serve.—Independence Examiner.

A SWELL FISHIN' TRIP THIS TURNED OUT TO BE.

CONFUSING.

There is likely to be considerable confusion at the November election in Missouri over the matter of voting on the workmen's compensation measure. Two proposals will appear on the ballot, one to be known as "No. 1" which was passed two years ago, and has been referred back to the voters and the other, "No. 3," the proposed substitute bill which was prepared by the disgruntled element that caused the "No. 1," measure to be submitted to a second vote.

The "No. 1" bill has the approval of the employers of the state and organized labor as well. The other does not.

It is claimed that proposal "No. 3," the proposed substitute measure, would saddle a heavy burden upon manufacturers, contractors and other employers, a burden that might cause many to withdraw from the state.

Missouri needs a good compensation act and already has approved one that is satisfactory to all but a small minority of radical labor leaders and questionable lawyers. The operations of this measure were held up through the mechanism of the initiative and referendum law.

Missouri citizens who want to see the state progress industrially will look into this matter closely and be careful how they vote next fall.

This tangle over the workmen's compensation bill illustrates the need of amending or repealing the initiative and referendum law. It is too easy to frustrate the will of the majority as the measure now stands. With the right kind of law in effect, the necessary petition to refer the compensation act back to the voters never could have been obtained.—Springfield Leader.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington.—Over at Fort Meyer, Va., a platoon of cavalry was drilling the other day.

It was a lovely sight. Beautiful horses. Magnificent horsemen. Perfect teamwork. The most intricate maneuvers executed with an ease that made them look simplicity itself. Risks taken that would make a circus rider's hair stand on end, but never an accident, never a hitch.

What a sad thought that cavalry is virtually obsolete!

They say it was used only two or three times on the west front. Done to death by the auto and the plane.

Then it occurred to me, "If cavalry is obsolete, why do they keep this up? Is it, in fact, obsolete?"

So I investigated.

Here's what I found out:

Cavalry isn't obsolete. The auto and the plane have cut in on its usefulness, but there still are things a man on horseback can do that can't be done by a man in an auto or the cockpit of a plane. When those things have to be done, cavalry's needed the worst way.

The horse isn't even obsolete in the artillery service, much less cavalry.

True, cavalry didn't figure much on the west front during the World War but it was used to good effect on the east front in Palestine.

Filling stations are few and far between on the Russo-German and Austro-Russian borders, in the Balkans and Mesopotamia. A country must be industralized to support automobiles. A horse can find forage almost anywhere.

Bringing gas up to a front is slow work, in a region where there isn't any. A horse can make it in jig time. Time counts in war.

Success of Safety Measures

Vehicles of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) crossed 36,840,000 railroad crossings during 1925, and traveled nearly two billion miles with but one fatal railroad crossing accident.

These statistics tell part of the story of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) safety campaign. They reveal the astonishingly successful results of this Company's persistent effort to reduce motor accidents.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has formulated Safety Rules requiring the exercise of extreme care and caution at all times. But the Safety Rules alone are not responsible for its extraordinary success in eliminating accidents.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) believes that the success of its safety campaign is due to the attitude of its drivers toward their work. The educational program of the safety department has been designed to develop and strengthen that attitude.

Standard Oil Company (Indiana) drivers, in common with all other Standard Oil Company (Indiana) employes, realize that courtesy and thoughtfulness of others are the very foundations of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) service.

Careful driving becomes, then, merely an extension of the ordinary courtesy and thoughtfulness that are practiced every day in all the various activities of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Drivers of Company trucks take pride in their traffic ability. They appreciate the responsibility of their jobs, the importance of foresight and caution.

Taking a chance at a railroad crossing, or any other reckless act, is regarded as evidence of incompetence and disloyalty.

An accident caused by carelessness implies a breach of trust on the part of the driver.

An employe of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is proud of the trust confided in him, anxious at all times, and in every way, to justify it.

A Standard Oil Company (Indiana) driver realizes that unusual trust is placed in him—that the lives of others are in his hands. He considers no effort too great to justify that trust—and no excuse valid for its violation.

This attitude of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) drivers toward their work has made the enforcement of the strict Safety Rules of the Company a simple matter.

It is this attitude that has made possible the record of 36,840,000 railroad crossings in 1925 with but one fatal accident.

This record is just another proof of the genuine and sincere desire of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to serve the people of the Middle West.

Guess No. 644

Spanish newspapers report that King Alfonso's present trip to England is being made in an attempt to arrange the marriage of his eldest daughter, the Infanta Beatrice, to the Prince of Wales. Anyway, one guess seems as good as another. Above is a recent photograph of the princess; Wales is shown in the inset.

Tom Groves, Graham, 78 Years Old Today

Well Known Farmer Was Born Near Maryville July 12, 1848.—Spends Day Pulling Weeds.

Tom Groves, well known resident of the Graham vicinity, today celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday—and also the seventy-eighth anniversary of his arrival in Nodaway County.

Mr. Groves was born July 12, 1848, on what is now known as the Alfred Jones farm, south of Maryville. He now lives between Graham and Maitland and has been on the same farm for fifty-two years.

Asked how he had celebrated the occasion, Mr. Groves said he had been pulling weeds.

Mrs. Groves also is living. She was born in Graham and is four years younger than her husband.

There are three sons, two of whom, D. M. and D. O. Groves, live on the farm with their parents. The eldest son, Charles E., is farming on the Groves "home place," about two miles north.

Mr. Groves was one of the first white children born in the county. At a recent old settlers reunion, there were two others of the same age, one of whom was "Bob" Linville of Skidmore. Mr. Groves could not remember the other.

Betty Brownfield of Marshall is visiting friends in Maryville for two weeks. The visitor came Thursday.

Miss Lucille Lee of Easton is visiting her aunts, Mrs. Joe Akens and Mrs. A. N. Reece.

Orders Inquiry Into Kansas Prison Revolt

Warden Mackey Will Try to Ascertain Who Was Directly Responsible for Revolt Among Prisoners.

Lansing, Kan., July 12.—An investigation was launched into affairs at the Kansas state prison today by warden W. H. Mackey to determine who was responsible for the coal mine mutiny that Friday and Saturday assumed proportions of a starve-out fight with 372 miners were imprisoneed 750 feet below the earth's surface.

Thirteen guards, who were imprisoned with the striking convicts, today could give little information on what had transpired among the prisoners during the thirty-six hours strike.

The guards were herded into the mule pen in the lone tunnel and kept under guard by a squad of strikers.

Warden Mackey, who earlier had intimated he would not punish the miners, today ordered a formal investigation made with a view to punishing the ring leaders of the revolt. Later in the day it was decided to call off all mine work and the convict workers were locked up pending an investigation.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Long of Shenandoah, Ia., were in Maryville today en route home from a week-end visit with relatives at Stanberry and Mrs. Long's sister, Mrs. Paul Fisher, at Rea.

Wanted Full Praise

Here is a story that is going the rounds in New York city: The chef to M. Ignace Paderewski receives almost as much publicity en tour as does the pianist; partly because he is a good chef, and partly because he insists that the world be made aware of his genius. To this his master assents. Anything for peace and shelter from the run of table food of the railroad diner. More, M. Paderewski makes a point of complimenting his chef frequently. "Tell the chef," he said, lately, upon conclusion of a meal, "that the fish was marvelous, the roast superb, and the ice cream unsurpassable." The waiter relayed the message and returned, duly, with the answer. "The chef says," he told M. Paderewski, "that the soup was excellent, too."

Her Good Work Unseen

After 25 years in theatrical obscurity, Madame Lempereur has reached the top of her profession in Paris, but the public still will see nothing of her. Madame Lempereur is a theater prompter. She has been appointed to officiate at the Comedie Francaise, France's leading state theater, otherwise known as the House of Moliere. "A good prompter is as rare as an actor with talent," said Andre Antoine, manager of the Odeon, second state theater, where Madame Lempereur previously served. "Many's the time my old comrade has pulled me out of a hole. I was only free from anxiety when she was in the prompter's box."

National Bank Stock Is Ordered Assessed

Pending Decision on Appeal of Tax Case, State Commission Orders Assessors to Proceed as Last Year.

County and township assessors of Missouri should continue to assess capital stock, surplus and other property of national banks, according to an opinion rendered by J. T. Waddill, chairman of the state tax commission, and sent to County Clerk Fred Smith by L. D. Thompson, state auditor.

The opinion is the result of the refusal by practically all the national banks of the state, among them the First National Bank of this city, to pay the taxes assessed against them and due last fall. The banks claim that they are being subjected to double taxation, on their capital stock and also the income therefrom.

An amendment made March 4, 1923, to the federal laws provides three methods for state taxing of national banks. The Missouri statutes provide for two of these, capital stock and income. But both cannot legally be taxed. In August 1924, the state tax commission advised all county and township assessors that the income of national banks was not subject to state income taxes and that they should not assess them. It also advised them that dividends received by the shareholders should not be included in their individual return and taxed as income.

It was not until April 18, 1925, however, that the state legislature formally elected to tax the stock of the national banks, rather than the income. The banks concerned contended that neither of the methods of taxing was in force from March, 1923, until ninety days after the General Assembly made its choice. This contention was upheld in a lengthy opinion delivered in a suit brought by the First National Bank of St. Louis.

"However," says the State tax commission's letter, "we understand that an appeal has been taken in this case. Therefore, as above stated, we have no recommendations or advice to offer other than to advise assessors to continue their assessments of their capital stock, surplus, etc., and that county courts refuses to consider applications for abatements on the ground of erroneous, until the same has been heard and a decision rendered in the higher court.

"We hope," the commission adds, "the case will be reversed, as it is unjust that national banks should escape all taxes, except on real estate, while state banks and trust companies are taxed on both capital and income."

The capital stock taxes assessed against the First National Bank here and held up pending a final decision amount to $1,681.20. The First National Bank of Burlington Junction is withholding similar taxes of $637.

Falls Off Running Board and Is Hurt

Earle Sims, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Sims of Burlington Junction, sustained scalp wounds and bruises about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon when he fell from the running board of a car. He was coming to Burlington Junction from Clearmont. Although the boy was unconscious a short time, his condition was reported satisfactory today.

Mrs. Harriett West Dies This Morning

Ravenwood Woman Had Been Ill Since February of Paralysis.—Funeral Probably Wednesday.

Mrs. Harriett West, 77 years old, died at 11:15 o'clock this morning at her home in Ravenwood. She had been ill since February of paralysis. Arrangements for the funeral are not complete. The service will probably be held Wednesday at the Christian Church in Ravenwood.

Mrs. West was born near McArthur, Ohio, and lived there until her marriage to William H. West on Dec. 6, 1868. They came to Johnson County, this state, in 1869, and a year later located in Nodaway County near Maryville. Their home had been in Ravenwood twenty-six years.

Mr. West and the following children survive: S. F. and W. H. West of Ravenwood, and Mrs. J. O. McWhorter of Stanberry. Twenty-one grandchildren, eighteen great grandchildren, two sisters, Mrs. S. G. Miller, Ohio, and Mrs. Lafe Hawkins, Nelsonville, Ohio, and one brother, A. M. Martindale of Loganville, Ind., also survive.

Kenneth and Billy Tebow spent the week end in Elmo with relatives and friends.

REST OF ROAD 27 THIS FALL

CONTRACT TO BE LET IF FUNDS ARE AVAILABLE.

MUCH OTHER PAVING

Savannah-St. Joseph Highway Now Is Complete.—Work On Routes 1 and 4 Progress Rapidly.

According to an article in Saturday's St. Joseph News-Press, all or a part of the present unimproved portion of route 27, from Savannah North through Rosendale, will be placed under contract this fall if sufficient funds are available.

The article gives other highway information as follows:

"Keeping pace with the activities of the corresponding period of last year and with a number of projects in view for the latter part of the season, another banner year in road construction in northwest Missouri is forseen by the state highway department. N. R. Sack, division highway engineer, said today that 5,129 miles of the 7,040 miles included in the state road system have been improved, with a good portion of the work in division No. 1, comprising a dozen counties in this part of the state.

"Of primary interest to motorists is the announcement of the completion of paving of the Savannah-St. Joseph highway this week. The stretch is on route 1, St. Joseph to Tarkio, and is of 18-foot concrete construction. It will be opened for traffic about Aug. 1. Between Oregon and Savannah, 7.5 miles of the 11.3 miles contract of the Eberhart Paving Company have been completed, and the entire project should be opened by Sept. 1. Contracts recently were awarded for the grading and graveling of route 1 F, from Forest City to Oregon.

Graded To Rock Port.

"Passing through a scenic portion of northwest Missouri route 1 is now graded from Rock Port to St. Joseph, with the exception of eleven miles from Fairfax to Craig, and this is expected to be under contract by July 30. The surfacing of this route will then proceed as rapidly as funds are available, according to Mr. Sack.

"On Route 4, St. Joseph through King City, Stanberry and Bethany, the C. H. Atkinson Paving Company is now at work on 1.2 miles of paving through Stanberry and the S. J. Groves Paving Company is on its 9 miles contract north of Bethany. The completion of this work will afford a hard surfaced road from a point three miles south of the Missouri-Iowa state line north of Bethany to St. Joseph with the exception of eleven miles near Clarksdale. The gap will be closed as quickly as funds will permit.

Marking Federal Highways.

"The marking of the recently designated transcontinental highways in Missouri has been one of the tasks of the department this season. Three of the highways, one east and west and two north and south, come within the local district. The east and west route, No. 36, extends from St. Joseph to Hannibal. The north and south routes, No. 71 and 69, enter the state near Burlington Junction and Bethany, respectively. The highways are being marked with a uniform metal shield in the same manner in all sections of the United States."

Missouri Farmers to Visit Minnesota

Delegations From Grundy and Putnam Counties Plan Tour of Sections Enriched By Dairying.

According to the Trenton Times, a number of farmers of Grundy County are planning an inspection trip to the northern dairy farms in Minnesota with a view to determining the practicability of a more general introduction of the industry in Grundy county. Although no definite plans for the trip have yet been outlined, the majority of those considering the trip had expressed a desire to go either in the late summer or early fall, when farm work will permit.

It is planned to make the trip by automobile and visit several Minnesota counties where the dairy business is known to be operated on a highly profitable basis in the returns for butterfat and other milk products.

Homer Browning, manager of the Farmers' Exchange at Trenton, says this section of Missouri is even better adapted to the dairy business than the Minnesota country, where long hard winters necessitate much more care and more expensive facilities to keep up a profitable production from dairy cows.

Putnam County farmers are planning to make a trip to Minnesota to study the dairying business about August 2. The Grundy county delegation may join the Putnam party.

Would Ask Substitute for Present Dry Law

Compromise Proprosal For National Referendum Suggested.—Would Permit State Option On Aridity.

Washington, July 12—A compromise plan for a national prohibition referendum next year is being discussed by dry and wet leaders behind the scenes here.

The plan has the tacit endorsement of some wets and a few drys, but will not be openly brought forward until returns have been received on "Feelers" put out by those suggesting the scheme.

The project is this:

1.—Introduction of a resolution in congress next December for a substitute for the Eighteenth Amendment permitting state option on prohibition.

2.—Adoption of this resolution by Congress for submission to the various state legislatures for ratification with the proviso that the legislature must have been elected after the proposal became an issue.

Details of the plan have not been worked out. It has not yet been determined, for instance, what provision could be adopted to prevent shipment of liquors from an optional wet state into an optional dry state.

The plan would relieve the government of enforcing an act which costs millions of dollars yearly. It would place responsibility for police enforcement of prohibition upon the states which desire it and would involve aid from the national government only toward preventing shipments in interstate commerce.

Sponsors of the project believe it is the most feasible plan to reconcile the views of the wet and dry states and would take prohibition out of the 1928 presidential campaign as a national issue.

The BOBCAT

BY HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS.

Big Tim Burke, real estate operator, and known to his associates as a land pirate, discharges one of his young lieutenants called Pol Gaillard because he is irritated by the latter's sleekness of appearance and nonchalant manner. Pol learns that his ex-boss covets a desirable piece of Long Island property owned by Professor Husted, and that another land shark, Michael Cadrigan, is after the same bit of land. Cadrigan lives on the shore of Long Island his only visitor. Cadrigan asks her to discontinue calling on the old man, intimating the professor's enemies may harm her.

Noticing a sloop anchored opposite the house, Veronica suggests to her Sound with his stepdaughter, Veronica, across the bay from Professor Husted. The latter lives like a hermit, Veronica stepfather that they call on the owner. They are invited on board, and their host introduces himself as Pol Gaillard, posing as an itinerant poet and artist. That night Pol rows over to the Husted house, and while he is ashore his sloop is cut adrift. The next night he and Veronica meet at Professor Husted's house. On leaving, Pol discovers that his boat has been scuttled. The professor invites Pol to be his guest. He accepts, although he is able to salvage his boat.

Pol dines with the Cadrigans. His host offers him five thousand dollars to influence Prof. Husted to sell his land to him. Pol refuses. That evening he rows over to the Italian settlement to get some food and, incidentally, to pick up what information he can. Pol is invited to lunch with Mrs. Tate, a widow and neighbor of the Cadrigans. She displays an unfriendliness toward Cadrigan.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

Pol Fences With Cadrigan.

Pol turned and looked at Mrs. Tate as if politely trying to interest himself in what she was saying.

"The count's body was found washed up on the shore over the neck of Husted's point with a knife wound through the heart. There was no great effort made to discover who had assinated him, or from what motive." Mrs. Tate dismissed the topic with a little gesture of distaste and the remark, "Local gossip was unkind to his memory, because the local people of a New England town like this have a good deal of the Puritan left and little sympathy for the sort of impulsive, undisciplined nature I imagine he possessed. I think our lunch is served, Mr. Gaillard."

Pol left Mrs. Tate evidently impressed with his ideas about the beautifying of her grounds. It had been too soft and muddy to get about them conveniently, but she agreed to send him a blue print plan that he might study more in detail.

Pol declined her offer to send him back in her car. He said that since he was so near the Cadrigans he would pay his dinner call and incidentally leave the borrowed custome that had been pressed.

Taking ceremonious leave of his hostess, Pol crossed to the gate in the hedge bordering the lane between the two estates, where he had taken more romantic leave of her the day before. Neither had referred to this sentimental episode. Every good strategian should know when to rest on a successful advance, there to fortify his fresh position.

Luigi informed Pol that Miss Cadrigan had gone for a ride, but that Mr. Cadrigan would be pleased to see him, although he was leaving shortly in his car for New York. Pol was shown into the library, where he found the realtor engaged in sorting papers. He greeted Pol pleasantly.

"I ought to have a private secretary," he grumbled. "Now if you were not superior to such a job or in need of one I might offer it to you."

"Thank you for the confidence implied, Mr. Cadrigan. It would be an honor to serve you, but as I have still a small sinking fund and ambitions to start something of my own, I think I shall take advantage of my jobless state to look around. Getting fired has proved a blessing in disguise to many a person."

"You are right. Many lack initiative to fire themselves. I did that after a few years of bondage, and have never had cause to regret it."

"Was your course at college a technical one?"

"Unfortunately not. It was supposedly academic, but actually athletic. I was at different times on every team we had, and went in for boxing and wrestling and fenc—h'm—fencing and the like."

"I have fenced a bit myself," said Pol. "But the trouble is in keeping it up—in this country."

"Golf is handier. We might have a game when I come back, if you are going to stop on. Veronica tells me you mentioned being good at it."

"I am a better fencer, sir."

"Well, I am not. But you might have a bout with your host, Professor Husted. He was one time member of a student corps in Heidelberg and the master swordsman of it, I believe."

"Professor Husted is no longer my host, sir. I got my boat off and sailed around to the town, where I am lying now."

"You did not disagree, I hope." Cadrigan laid down his papers and shot Pol a keen look.

"Scarcely that, sir. But I'm afraid he found me unsettling to his ideas. Perhaps he felt I had an ax to grind. If so, he was mistaken. I ground my last ax in the north woods, the Pike Fort country."

Cadrigan sorted a paper or two, made an annotation, then said: "My stepdaughter told me you grew up there. Did you ever by any chance come across her father, the Count di Corsoli?"

"I remember the name. Oddly enough, since we were just speaking of fencing, I seem to associate his name with some sort of a duel, but whether with sword or ax or peevy I couldn't say."

Cadrigan nodded. "It is possible. He was hot headed, though in many ways a lovable man. But out of place over here. Combustible, like most of his class and nationality. Have you thought any more about my proposition, Mr. Gaillard?"

Pol leaned forward in his chair, which was facing the blaze of bright light from an open window. "Mr. Cadrigan, you must know the proverb, 'Everything comes to him who waits'."

"True. But what if several are waiting? It is also said that a man may get his wish by wishing hard enough. But the other fellow might be a better wisher."

"Likewise," Pol quoted, 'He prayeth best who loveth best.' But his prayer might be even more effective if he were loved. All things being equal, if he were to wish and wait and be loved, or his interest contained in another who was loved, there would surely be results."

Cadrigan leaned back. "Now what the devil are you driving at?"

"Your impatience. It is evident to the intelligent observer that there is no great love between you and the professor. But the professor loves your stepdaughter dearly, and her interests are in a measure your own. He is an old and friendless man, without heirs whom he esteems. It is therefore almost certain that he will make Miss Cadrigan his heiress, if he has not already done so. Why, therefore, vex yourself and waste your time?"

Cadrigan breather hard through his nose. "He is a hale old man, Mr. Gaillard, and apt to live long. I would be a fool not to have thought of this. And what if she were to marry some—some headstrong waster like her father? Or some sly one, of his nationality and temperament?"

"Either would be most apt to serve your interest, Mr. Cadrigan."

Cadrigan frowned. "I am not at all so sure. Neither is that the point. I do not want to wait. It is not my nature nor my inclination."

"Merely a frank suggestion, sir," said Pol. "Leave it then, for what you feel it is not worth. I have saved you five thousand dollars."

Cadrigan frowned. "Yes, and I wish I knew why, Mr. Gaillard. No doubt you are honest, as you say. But a young man might be that and still see his way to annexing such a retainer. More than that, I still believe you could have handled the professor had you wished."

"It is not hard to influence a lonely person, if only you can stick long enough to give him the habit of you, sir."

"Then why did you not try to stick? I was astonished that he asked you to his house. But once having done that, he could have no more got you out than he could have rid himself of——"

"Bedbugs, Mr. Cadrigan?"

"Let us say the scent of musk?

"Or a skunk, Mr. Cadrigan. The smile is apt. But skunks are hunted and trapped for their pelts these days, and I might have found my own tacked against the wall."

Cadrigan drew down his heavy eyebrows. "Just what do you mean?"

"That I consider Professor Husted to be in the nature of a dud. He is like an unexploded shell just under the top soil of a fallow field, and one day some meddler is apt to detonate him and get blown up."

Cadrigan fastened the young man with his cold stare. Pol's sleepy eyes met it with the indifference of some jaded animal born in captivity.

"Professor Husted has been clumsily manipulated, Mr. Cadrigan. First he was committed to a madhouse on what would appear to be insufficient evidence of mental derangement. When, after a span of years, that proved to be a wasted effort, he was discharged on still less sufficient grounds. In all that time his condition had changed neither for the better nor for the worse."

Rich Hotel Owner Plans Modern Pyramid in Arkansas to Record Present Civilization for Future Generations

Fayetteville, Ark., July 12.—A huge concrete pyramid that will preserve records of present-day civilization for millions of years, if necessary, is being built among the back hills of the Arkansas Ozarks by William Hope (Coin) Harvey, wealthy resort hotel owner.

On the passageway leading to the central crypt will be a copper tablet for some archaeologist of the year 121,097, or thereabouts, to decipher. It will read:

"When this is read, go below and find a record of and the cause of the death of a former civilization."

A Friend of Bryan.

Harvey, who was a close friend and co-worker of the late William Jennings Bryan, and a leader in the free silver movement that Bryan espoused in the "nineties," believes that some day our civilization must pass away—just when, he doesn't pretend to know, except that it will be a great many years hence. And he wants future generations, who poke around in our ruins, to have as full and complete an account of our customs and inventions as possible. Hence the pyramid.

"Our civilization of today is rich in intricate inventions and cultural devices, but it can leave little, if anything, in the way of lasting records for the ages to come," he says.

"This pyramid, which I regard as the greatest undertaking of my life, will preserve records of the world of the present for the greater civilizations of the future, and those nations and civilizations may have the opportunity to build up a happier world through finding out the mistakes and advantages of the life of our age.

"I have decided to erect my pyramid here because geologically the Ozarks are among the oldest mountains in the world. The process of erosion has diminished their original height of more than 14,000 feet to less than 1400 feet above sea level. The hard limestone base, which I have effectually protected from the action of ground water, is as enduring as any substance known, and the hills have already become so worn that it is impossible for the pyramid to become buried through erosion of the nearby mountains."

Work Already Begun.

Work on the foundation of the big pyramid has already begun, and construction of the main body will start within a few weeks. They pyramid is to be 130 feet high, 40 feet square at its base and six feet square at the top. Its construction will require 16,000 sacks of cement, 30,000 cubic feet of sand and 58,000 cubic feet of gravel. To total cost is estimated at $50,000.

The top of a rounded hill has been excavated to bed-rock limestone for the foundation, and approximately 150 holes have been drilled 25 feet into the rock, in which cement shafts will be sunk as protection against erosion.

In the center of the pyramid there will be a room 20 feet square, surrounded by a solid concrete wall eight feet thick. This chamber will contain two vaults from which the air can be exhausted by a system of pipes leading to the outside.

Samples of Machinery.

In these vaults will be placed various examples of this generation's achievements — miniature airplanes, radio sets, phonographs, linotype machines, steamships, automobiles and other mechanical devices. Magazines and newspapers, their pages covered with waxed paper to prevent the ink from fading, will be placed in the vaults, as will a copy of "Common Sense," a book by Mr. Harvey.

There will be nothing to perpetuate the names of any people aside from the records in the books and magazines. No names will be engraved on the walls.

After the vaults are filled they will be hermetically sealed and the air will be exhausted by means of the pipes. Then the mouth of the shaft leading to the crypt will be sealed—and the pyramid will be left to wait for the prying eyes of some curious scientist, scores of centuries in the future.

Medicinal Whisky Is Rapidly Diminishing

Prohibition Officials Declare Action Within Year Is Necessary To Prevent Stock's Depletion.

Washington, July 12—Federal prohibition chiefs asserted today that immediate action is necessary to prevent exhaustion of the diminishing supply of medicinal whisky.

General Lincoln C. Andrews' plan for government ownership of present stocks and production of a continuing supply has been overruled by his superiors and prohibition unit officials told the United Press that action within a year is imperative if this supply is to be maintained.

Andrews and his assistants, Frank Dow and J. M. Doran agreed before the dry czar went abroad that a solution must be reached soon. No definite plans have been made for renewal of legitimate whisky manufacture which has been entirely stopped for the last five years.

A suggestion that a government corporation be formed to carry on the business has been made unofficially but it is not yet officially under consideration. The president is represented as being opposed.

Round the World Flight Via South Pacific Planned by Spanish and Portugese Fliers

Madrid—Spain and Portugal are planning another round the world air flight early in 1927.

Spanish and Portugese aviators intend to start together from Lisbon and cross the Atlantic by way of Las Palmas, Bissao, Fernando de Noronha and Pernambuco. They then will fly to Buenos Aires, the Falkland Islands, cross Oceania, stopping successively in Mary Tierra Island off Chile, Easter Island, Pitcairn Island, Tahiti, Apia, Noumea, Townsville, Australia, Dili and Surabaya in Java; to reach the Asian continent at Singapore. Continue they will follow the strait of Malacca to Kota Radja in the northern part of Sumatra, thence across the Bay of Bengal to Colombo along the Malabar coast to Villanova de Goa, Karachi, Bushire, Alexandria, Syracuse and back to the Iberian Peninsula where the flight was initiated.

It is likely that the Spanish aviators will be the now famous Commandant Franco who flew from Palos de Moguer to Buenos Aires, his mechanic Pablo Rada, and Captains Lorgia and Galarza who completed the Madrid Manila flight. The Portuguese aviators who are preparing for the world flight are Commandant Sarmento de Beires who flew from Lisbon to Macao, Lieutenant Jose Cabral, commandant in the maritime aviation, and Captain Jorge de Castilho, another Portuguese ace.

It is not known yet what plane the Spanish aviators will use, but the Portuguese have decided to try to make the flight on a metalic waterplane which will be equipped with two motors and space to carry four men, wireless instruments, and sufficient gasoline and oil to make hops of over 1,800 miles at a speed of a hundred miles an hour.

The total approximate distance of this flight is over twenty-six thousand miles. The longest of the twenty-five scheduled jumps is a little less than 1,800 miles; it will have to be made over the Pacific Ocean.

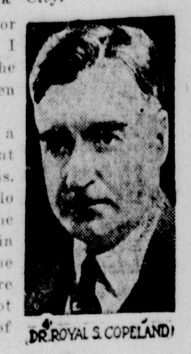
WASH HAIR WEEKLY TO KEEP IT HEALTHY

A Clean Scalp Prevents the Growth of Germs and Tends to Prevent Baldness, Which Is Due to Two Causes.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.



In considering the causes for baldness we may look for two chief ones: mechanical and physiological. By this I mean that if any mechanical pressure is placed upon the blood vessels so that the supply of blood is cut off, then baldness is very likely to follow.

There is an old-fashioned idea that wearing a hat is a factor in baldness. The usual explanation is that the heat of the hat produces the trouble. I do not subscribe to this.

In my opinion a heavy, hard, tight hat has much to do with falling hair. The pressure of the sweatband upon the blood vessels all the way around the scalp must reduce in a very material way the quantity of blood going into the vessels at the top of the head. One reason why women are less likely to be bald than men is because their hats do not place the same pressure upon the scalp as do the hats of men.

The first way to avoid such mechanical pressure of the hatband is to wear a light and somewhat oversized hat. Head gear of this description is less likely to produce pressure upon the blood vessels than a different style of hat.

In the next place, if there is a tendency to baldness, it is a good idea to wear the hair long. This habit forms a cushion of hair to protect the blood vessels and keeps the pressure off them.

Light rays may have a stimulating and useful effect upon the circulation. Sunlight, I have no doubt, is beneficial, because it stimulates the scalp and encourages an increased flow of the blood to that part of the body.

It is important to keep the scalp clean. When I see greasy, dandruff-filled, stringy hair, I can hardly resist the temptation to give a little advice. Such hair affords a breeding place for all sorts of germs.

The hair should be washed frequently. The short hair of men and the bobbed hair of women can be thoroughly washed and dried without trouble. At least once a week, and, better, still, twice a week, this cleansing process should be had.

Pure soap and water in abundance, with a good scrubbing and rinsing out with lots of clean water, will take the dirt and grease from the hair. This should be your pleasure just as much as washing your face and hands adds to your comfort.

The hair should be brushed every day and kept dry. By this I mean I would not wet it when it is combed. If the hair is left moist, the evaporation chills the scalp and sends the blood to the deeper parts, aggravating a nasal catarrh or throat trouble.

Give enough attention to the scalp to make your crop of hair a real adornment.

Answers To Health Queries.

Jake. Q.—What should a boy of sixteen, five feet seven inches tall, weigh?

2.—What would cause the small of the back to pain after pitching in a game of baseball?

A.—He should weigh about 135 pounds.

2.—Must be due to muscle strain—massage should help.

A. M. K. Q.—What is the cause of the whites of the eyes appearing yellow, and what can be done for the condition?

A.—Usually due to a gald bladder or liver condition. The diet and elimination should receive particular attention. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

C. K. Q.—What causes extreme pressure on top of the head and the head to feel hot on top?

2.—What do you advise for low blood pressure?

A.—This may be due to low blood pressure.

2.—The cause must first be located and the treatment outlined by the family physician. In many instances treatment over a short period of time eradicates all symptoms.

THIS WEEK IN MISSOURI HISTORY

Compiled by
The State Historical Society of Missouri, Columbia
Floyd C. Shoemaker, Secretary
July 4-10.

Time is a severe test. During the course of one hundred years many institutions rise, flourish for a time, and then disappear. A few survive. Jefferson Barracks is one of these. This week marks the centennial anniversary of its establishment as a military post, about July 10, 1826.

Although Jefferson Barracks cannot lay claim to being the oldest military post in the State, its history is closely connected with the latter. Under the Spanish regime the troops stationed in St. Louis occupied barracks in the enclosure known as "Fort on the Hill," located near the line of what became Fifth Street and parallel with it. In 1804 the Missouri country was transferred to the United States and two years later the troops were moved to Bellefontaine, which had belonged to the old Spanish fort of "St. Charles the Prince." Here they remained until transferred to Jefferson Barracks in 1826-1827.

The post was originally established in July, 1826 as a training school for infantry and as such was the first of its kind, no other being established until more than fifty years later. The name of Jefferson Barracks was not applied until October of 1826.

The story of the acquisition of the site of Jefferson Barracks by our government runs as follows. This tract of land, comprising 1702 acres, was until 1824 a part of the commons of the old village of Vide-Poche (Empty Pocket) later known as Carondelet, and now a part of St. Louis. In this year the land was leased by the old village to the United States with the view of obtaining a market for its products. It was not until about 1852 that the United States gained more complete possession of the land through a quit-claim deed granted by the corporation of Carondelet. This quit-claim, however, was granted under protest and soon the village brought suit against the government for the recovery of the land. Since at that time the courts considered it doubtful whether a suit could be brought against the government, the case dragged along until March, 1873 when it was finally dropped and the United States became owner of the property.

General Jacob Brown in command of the U. S. Army is commonly supposed to have chosen the site, but the facts seem to indicate that he never saw the place until some time after building operations had begun. The decayed condition of the old buildings at the Bellefontaine post made imperative the immediate selection of another site. Whether this site was chosen on account of its proximity to Bellefontaine or with a full realization of its elegibility is not known. It was, at any rate, an excellent selection, for it has been approved as the most eligible contonment in the whole country.

In addition to its practicality the site of these barracks possesses beauty, being located "amid gently rolling hills and commanding an unusual view of the river."

In spite of the beauty of their surroundings, the first soldiers quartered here in 1826 must have suffered annoying inconveniences due to the fact that the buildings were, until 1837, in a more or less incomplete condition and hardly fit for habitation. These inconveniences were more easily endured, however, owing to the presence of General Atkinson's charming wife, who, aided by her equally charming sisters, transformed the post into a delightful home for gay and gallant soldiers. Then too, the post was near enough to St. Louis to allow the soldiers to enjoy the hospitality of that city's elite society, consisting of such families as the O'Fallons, Clarks, Chouteaus, Gratiots and Mullanphys, with whom many young soldiers naturally formed lasting attachments.

Between the years 1826-1837 very slow progress was made in the building operations partly due, no doubt, to the fact that most of the masonry was done by the inexperienced military men. Since time was more abundant than money this seemed to be the best course to pursue, and the result was that the entire group of buildings was complete at the surprisingly low cost of $70,000. The buildings were all made of gray limestone and were situated on three sides of the parade ground, leaving the side toward the river open.

The location of this post near the western frontier of the country made it the logical starting point of many expeditions for distant military service or exploring purposes. It is stated that prior to 1861 nearly every regiment in the army had been represented there. Its military history up to the time of the Civil War yields some interesting facts. It was the headquarters of the campaign against the Sacs and Foxes, as a result of which, the famous Indian chief, Black Hawk, was captured and brought to Jefferson Barracks as a prisoner. It also furnished some of the troops in the expedition against the Seminoles in Florida. Here the first regiment of dragoons was organized under Colonel Henry Dodge. Here also, Jefferson Davis, secretary of war, organized in 1855 the famous Second Regiment of cavalry intended for immediate service in Texas. "It is doubtful if any other regiment furnished a greater number of distinguished officers to the two contending armies in the Civil War." Some of the most outstanding of these are General Albert Sidney Johnston and General Robert E. Lee of Confederate fame and General George H. Thomas and General George Stoneman of Union renown, as well as many others. The movements of our troops in the Mexican war were largely directed from this point. During the years 1853-1856 "Farmer" Grant was a frequent visitor at the post with his loads of "garden sass" or perhaps an occasional load of cordwood.

At the outbreak of the Civil War the barracks were transformed into a general military hospital. So large was the number requiring medical care that in 1862 the erection of additional hospital wards was begun.

After the war the post was used as a garrison for troops, then as an engineer depot, and then as a cavalry post. In 1897 prominent St. Louis citizens visited Washington with the purpose of impressing on the war department the importance of Jefferson Barracks as a military post, and in 1898 funds were appropriated for additional buildings and the post was raised to the dignity of a brigadier general's command.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, July 12.—Strengths changed from the wheat pit into corn on the Chicago Board of Trade today while the former was losing on a nervous market, the latter registered good gains. Oats and other pits were very dull.

Wheat prices fluctuated within a comparatively narrow range most of the day but were from ⅜ to 1⅛ cents below Saturday's level at the close. July maintained its level fairly well, however.

The weather over the Northwestern spring wheat belt has shown no improvement of any importance and reports from the Southwest are of the same tenor that they have been since the movement started there.

Corn prices advanced rapidly on the bullish item of the government report and although they did lose a little in sympathy with wheat, were from 1 to 1¼ cents higher than the prvious close.

Oats gained ⅛ of a cent on the September and December deliveries and lost the same fraction on the July position after fluctuating with a very narrow range throughout a dull day.

Provisions were up early in the day but closed dull.

Warrensburg Wins, But "Petey" Jones Shines Even As the Sun

With H. Frank Lawrence on the mound for the local College and Tad Reid doing the twirling for Warrensburg, the latter team chalked up a 15-to-6 victory in the last of a three game series at the fairgrounds Saturday afternoon.

The game was interesting to a great measure in spite of the score. The rival coaches, neither of whom makes any claim to fame as a moundsman, did a fair job of pitching. Both grew weary in the waning innings of the game, however, and it was then that Warrensburg hitting sprees piled up the winning score.

The sensation of the game was a home run by Iba, Maryville first sacker, in the seventh frame with two men on. Iba had been walked three time previously.

But the star of the game, shinning with a magnitude exceeded only by the aurora borealis and Old Sol himself, was "Peety" Jones, another coach at the College. "Petey" performed behind the bat and right manfully did he handle the rifle-like deliveries of "Shorty," his colleague.

Ever alert, always watching, he played with the agility of a monstrous cat, and once, on a high fly, he circled the grandstand, dodged a fleet of automobiles, caught the "elusive pill," tumbled head over heels, and came up smiling, the baseball clutched tightly in his pudgy and smudgy fist.

But that wasn't all that "Peety" did. After having been walked twice, (purposely it is understood), he stepped to the bat the third time and pounded out a two-bagger. Some say that "Petey" cut directly from home to second, but those who were not watching the lazy flight of the globule say that the College coach touched first in a cloud of dust.

The scoring of the game was well divided in the following manner:

Warrensburg — 0 0 3 0 1 2 5 0 4.
Maryville — 0 0 0 2 0 0 3 1 0.

The line-ups:

Maryville—Jones, c; Lawrence, p; Iba, 1b; Search, 2b; Lyle, ss; Steiger, 3b; Barnes, rf; George, cf; Joy, lf.

Warrensburg—Stagner, c; Reid, p; Boone, 1b; French, 2b; Dorland, ss; Stewart, 3b; Poe, rf; Ramsey, cf; Smith, lf.

Mercer umpired the game.

BURLINGTON JUNCTION LOSES GAME YESTERDAY

BUHLER PITCHES WELL

Fluke Home Run by DeHault and Boner by Arthur Are Other Features of Baseball Game.

The Maryville Merchants won a well-reserved victory yesterday at Burlington Junction when they bested the Burlington nine, 5 to 4. The game was featured by sixteen strike-outs by Henry Buhler, Maryville pitcher; a home run by DeHault, B. J., shortstop; and a wild throw by Roy Arthlr, Maryville third sacker. This last feature gave Burlington two runs.

Buhler was perfectly at home on the rubber yesterday. He pitched a good game of ball and kept the seven hits scattered until the last two innings.

Maryville led, 5 to 0, until the eighth inning. Then Harringtan doubles for Burlington and Buckridge singled. On the next play, Rhodes bunted and Arthur fielded the ball easily. There was plenty of time for the throw home and the Maryville players threw too easily—and too widly. Two men scored.

In the ninth, DeHault hit a fluke home run with one man on. The ball was lost in the weeds and was not found until the runner had circled the Iba, Maryville center fielder, recorded the only stolen base. There were five two-base hits in the game. Neither pitcher walked a man.

Starts An Ice Route Into Rural Districts

Hymers, Kans., July 12—Farmers living in Diamond Creek township in this vicinity get the same ice service as townspeople as Percy Edmonds, Hymer merchant, has established an ice route and drives 60 miles a day to deliver ice to his patrons.

Edmonds believes he has one of the longest rural ice routes in the state of Kansas, on which he has 22 patrons.

Pickering Wins 9-7 Game.

Eleven innings were required for Pickering to win from the Atchison County All Stars yesterday at Quitman. The score was 9 to 7. Gumm and Burch were the battery for Pickering and Inman and Florea performed for the All Stars. Pickering will play Rea at Pickering next Sunday.

FARM GLIMPSES

By BILLY TILSON.

Mr. Money and sons, southeast of Quitman, are putting their threshing outfit in good repair as they will start out soon threshing. Wheat and oats will not make a very heavy yield over in their territory.

R. J. Allison, east of Hopkins, reports corn looking fine in that vicinity, barring a few acres that were washed out by the rains. Wheat is all in the shock and this week will wind up the oats harvest.

John McMahon of Skidmore says they have the best prospect for a good yield of corn that he has seen at this time of the year for a long time, most all fields being clear of weeds.

Ernest Bainum, east of Skidmore, has a large field of corn that has tassled out and silking and if corn weather prevails Ernest will have a bumper crop.

Willard Nichols, east of Skidmore, will send to the market this week a bunch of 450 and 500 pound sows. Mr. Nichols has around eighty head of fine shoats on the farm.

Charles Pfeiffer, east of Skidmore, says he has the best prospect for corn that he has had in years at this time of the year. He says his oats and wheat will make a fair yield. Charley says he is not the only one that has a good prospect down that way and many fine fields can be seen.

Dick Maurer of the Sunnybrook neighborhood was visiting in the City Saturday. Dick says conditions point to a great crop year down in that vicinity.

S. A. Heflin, northwest of Barnard, has sixty head of Whiteface steers that he will send to the market the first of the week. Sherman has taken great pains in feeding them and expects to receive around the top price. He has a good bunch of hogs that he is feeding along with them.

S. E. Armstrong, northwest of Barnard, is feeding two car loads of 950 pound steers and expects to feed them about ninety days longer. Sam has been corning them and running them on grass for some time but thinks he will take them off grass and go to feeding alfalfa with the grain. He says his cattle and hogs have been making splendid gains.

A. M. ("Bine") Ashford, east of Clearmont, was visiting in Maryville Saturday. Bine formerly lived in north of Maryville and he says it's mighty pleasant to spend a Saturday night on the streets of this city.

Charles Donahue, southeast of Quitman, was a Maryville visitor Saturday. Charley says the farmers are well pleased with the crop outlook over that way. Corn is looking fine, oats will be a fair yield, pastures in excellent condition for stock and those that are lucky enough to have hogs to sell are receiving good prices.

We had a letter from W. B. Badger of Okmulgee, Okla., stating that his father, C. W. Badger of that place, had a stroke of apoplexy last Tuesday and that his condition was serious. Mr. and Mrs. Badger and family formerly lived in and around Barnard, and moved to Oklahoma a few years ago. Their host of friends in this county hope to hear of a speedy recovery.

Being cynical is enough to make any man a cynic.

385 Lose Lives In Mexican Flood

Three hundred and eighty-five people were drowned and much property destroyed when the town of Leon, in Guanajuato, Mexico, was swept by the flooded waters of the Gomez river. Upper picture shows how the adobe houses crumbled away when the water swept through them; below, the water is shown flowing through one of the main streets of the town.

Stung in Hotel Deal, He Says; Asks $18,000

Francis M. Hunt, Formerly of Maryville, Files Suit for Money Sunk in Kansas City Hostelry.

According to Saturday's Kansas City Post, Francis M. Hunt of Kansas City formerly of Maryville, filed suit in the circuit court in that city to recover $18,000 damages from Jerome B. Bray, from whom Mr. Hunt purchased the Princeton Hotel in Kansas City. The Post says:

The suit charges the monthly earnings of the hotel were misrepresented to Mr. Hunt when he purchased the hotel in March, 1924, for $29,900. At the end of eighteen months, the petition states, Mr. Hunt had lost $2,000 besides his investment, and was forced to sell the hotel for the amount of the purchase price, which remained unpaid.

The suit was filed by J. F. Anderson and Clyde Taylor, attorneys for Mr. Hunt. Mr. Hunt again has become a salesman, the occupation in which he was engaged when he came here from Maryville, to take charge of the hotel. He now is said to be living at the Hotel Muehlebach.
